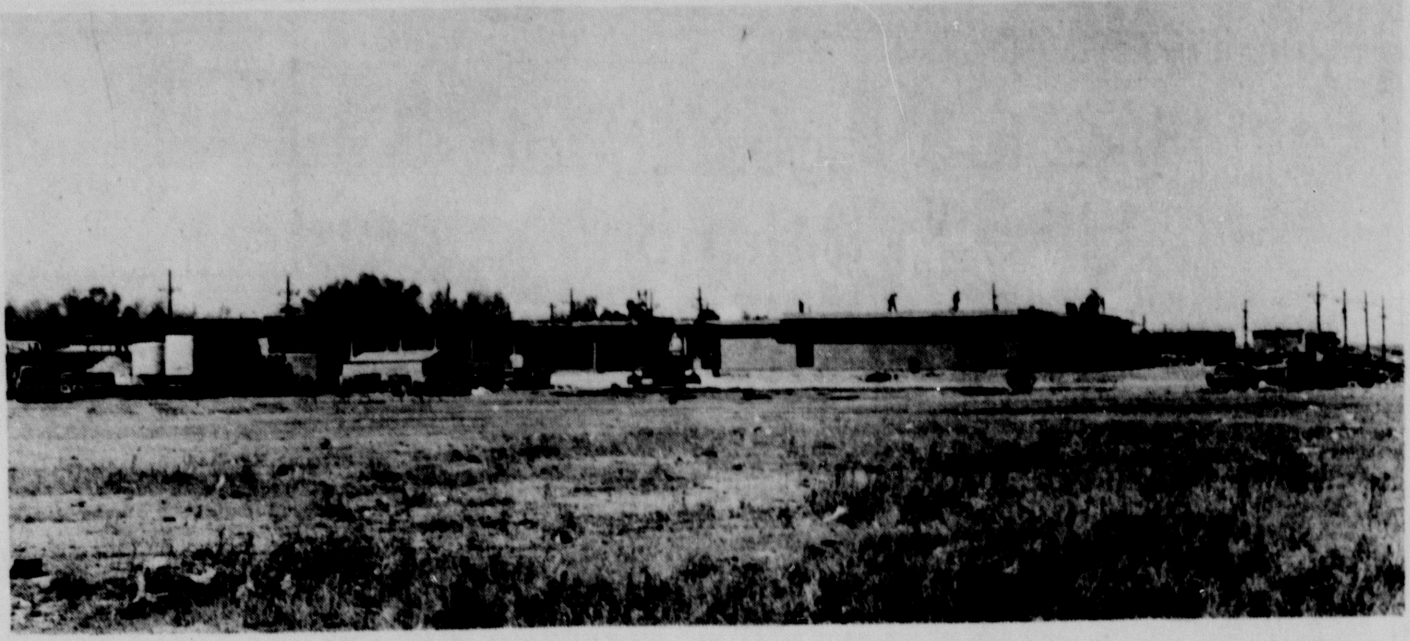
The Canyon Sunday News

"Were it left for me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers, or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter."
Thomas Jefferson

VOL. 5 NO. 31 SUNDAY, APRIL 7, 1974 8 PAGES 15 CENTS



Construction on the new Canyon hospital east of town continues with several outside walls going up. The structure is to be completed by the first of the year if all goes well. Hospital board members continue planning for equipment purchases for the new hospital.

County, school face tax woes

Taxes for residents of Randall County and the Canyon School District are expected to rise within the next year as officials face the possibility of unprecedented growth not only in population but in price.

School Supt. Jerry Jacobs said this week he expects school board members to hike taxes.

Mrs. Audrey Bruse, county tax assessor-collector, is definitely for a complete reappraisal of property in the county to bring valuations in line with fair market value.

And, Randall County commissioners as well as school board members have shown an increased interest in studying their tax situations.

County commissioners face — as they have faced for the last few years — a deficit budget again next year. School board members face the pressing need to supply more school facilities for more and more families moving into the Canyon school district.

In their budget estimates for 1974, county commissioners allowed for revenues totalling $1.18 million. They planned for expenditures to total $1.36 million for the same year, a deficit of about $180,000. That deficit, as in years past, will be made up by siphoning off surplus funds accumulated during the 1960s. The surplus will be depleted from a 1974 beginning total of $386,000 to a 1975 beginning total of $210,000, according to county budget estimates.

Commissioners called for a review of the tax situation during regular session last week and are to take up the matter at 1 p.m. Monday. County Judge Woody Pond has not discounted the possibility of a full reappraisal of county property.

Mrs. Bruse said last week she estimates the valuations placed on county property now by her office are about 65 per cent of the true market value of that property.

She said forms the county is now using to figure property taxes were dated 1959 and said she has no idea when the county had a complete reappraisal of property values.

Some counties and cities, she said, carry out a continuing reappraisal program. She cited Austin as an example and said the total tax role is reappraised every two years.

Mrs. Bruse said she favors expansion of her staff to include appraisers to carry out such a program for the county rather than hiring an outside firm to perform a reappraisal.

While the county's problem is spending which outruns revenue, the school district faces the problem of an already tight budget stretched by ever-rising prices for goods and services coupled with the probable influx into the district of many new families over the next five years.

School Tax Collector Conway Kuykendall pointed up another problem in the tax picture when he said the school valuations on city property are about 69 per cent of true market value and on farm property about 40 per cent of true market value.

The school district financed a complete reappraisal in 1966.

Reappraisal plans are stymied for both governmental entities, however, by provisions in the proposed state constitution now under study in Austin.

The new finance section which will be proposed for approval to Texas voters later this year realigns tax jurisdictions and makes the county the appraising agent for each governmental agency within the county.

County commissioners as well as school board members are wary of beginning a reappraisal before the new constitution is put to a vote. They feel with passage of the constitution, the reappraisal might become less than germaine.

And, they are wary too that particularly in the area of school financing the federal courts may hand down guidelines for financing.

While reappraisal plans are less than clear for both entities, the school superintendent is relatively sure a tax increase is on the way.

"The only reason we couldn't is if we have enough growth in tax values to offset the costs," Jacobs said. "No more than I know now, it doesn't seem possible for us to get that much growth in value."

Many local farmers hard-hit by drought; some wheat is lost

Portions of the wheat crop in 120 of the county's working farms have been abandoned this spring, ASCS officials said last week.

Another 60 to 70 farms are to be appraised according to current lists and others could call for appraisal before wheat harvest time, ASCS director Don Lloyd said.

A months-long drought, which began last fall when inadequate moisture for planting this year's wheat crop was available, has caused the abandonment for local farmers.

Lloyd estimated last week that as many as one-third to one-half the farms in the county could call for some abandonment of wheat before harvest.

"I'm afraid we'll have a bunch more coming in," Lloyd said.

Local farmers can receive a nominal payment for abandoned wheat through a new government program established last year by passage of a federal Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973.

Lloyd said the program provides some protection financially for farmers who lose their wheat crop or portions of their crop to natural disaster.

He said the majority of the abandoned wheat being appraised in the county by USDA and ASCS officials is dryland. But, he noted that some irrigated wheat was hard-hit by insects and has been abandoned.

To become eligible for the payments under the 1973 act, farmers must sign up for next year's feed grain program with the ASCS. Lloyd said sign-ups can be taken concurrently with filing of abandonment papers at his office.

Appraisers eyeing area crops for abandonment mark off a plot of ground in the wheat field and count the number of plants before certifying the abandoned acreage, Lloyd said.

The payment paid per bushel for abandoned wheat is only minimal, Lloyd said, but might help to offset some production costs for farmers.

The program allows payments of 68 cents per bushel for abandoned wheat whereas the target price for wheat established by the government is $2.05 per bushel.

Lloyd said the 120 to 180 who have already sought abandonment appraisals may be only the tip of the iceberg in Randall County.

Many farmers, he said, are waiting for more moisture to decide whether to abandon portions of their crops.

Some, he said, may go ahead and graze out their crops. But, before grazing begins, he said, farmers who want to seek appraisals for abandonment should contact his office so the appraisal may be made before grazing begins.

The Panhandle drought has made national news in recent weeks owing to its effect on the wheat crop. Lloyd said discussions with other ASCS directors indicates the drought has hit the Lubbock area very hard and is now taking its toll on the North Plains where moisture for a good crop had previously been thought to be adequate.

Canyon dry town? ask Cub Scouts

The figures belie the fact that Canyon is deep in the heart of a dry county precinct.

Forty boys in Cub Scouts Pack 131 from Canyon collected over a two-month period ending April 1 more than 13,000 beer cans in the city.

Pack Leader John Grillo said the boys hauled the cans to Amarillo's Coors Beer plant last week and turned in 562 pounds of smashed aluminum beer cans for recycling.

For their two-months effort, the boys took home $56.20 to help pay for various pack activities.

Grillo said the project began two months ago to make money as well as to remove "the glitter" from the road side.

"We consider it a major success," Grillo said after returning from the recycling facility.

The boys of the pack picked up some incidental honors on the way. Their exhibit in last weekend's Scout-A-Rama in Ama-

Elm foliage predators emerge with the leaves

While Canyon's elm trees begin their rapid turn from winter brown to light and then dark green, the trees' most ravenous predator emerges from winter hibernation to launch a foliage feast which won't end until first fall frost.

The brown and yellow elm leaf beetle has made its first spring appearance in the city coinciding with the initial growth of leaves on the city's primary shade source.

While the adult beetle does not himself skeletonize elm trees, the life cycle which will lead to the midsummer and fall defoliation of the elms will begin shortly, according to County Agent John Brazzil.

Brazzil said the destructive beetle has been hibernating throughout the winter in the adult life stage, readying for another decension on the city's elms which will undoubtedly be carried out another summer.

Currently, the beetles are simply waiting for the small green buds to become leaves on the elm trees. With the emergence of the leaves, the beetle will begin a new life cycle by laying eggs — small brownish clusters — on the underside of elm leaves.

The cycle is beginning on elm trees all the way from South Texas through Oklahoma and Kansas — any area where the elm is a plentiful shade tree.

Within a few days following laying the eggs, the adult beetles will die and the new eggs will hatch and the most destructive part of their life cycle will begin.

Larvae, between ¼ and ½ inches in length, will inundate elms and begin eating the leaves.

For between 15 and 21 days the larvae will spend its time eating and growing.

After that period, the larvae will emerge into the adult and non-eater stage of life. Then, the cycle will be repeated.

Brazzil said it is not unusual for a single adult beetle to lay dozens of eggs on the underside of elm leaves.

For about six years, the elm leaf beetle has been feasting on Canyon trees, moving into this area from more southern portions of Texas.

Brazzil said as he's said in year's past that no major research is underway to try to control the life of the elm leaf beetle.

Insecticides which could be effective only for large areas are available. For the individual homeowner, the insecticides could only cost money while having little effect on the infestation, Brazzil said.

Because the elm leaf beetle is a winged creature which can fly from tree to tree or area to area, trees sprayed in one yard will not be safe from their spread.

More plans prepared to beautify city area

Tentative plans have been laid by the Women's division of the Chamber of Commerce for various beautification projects in Canyon.

The plans will coincide to an extent with plans already in the mill for beautification of the West Texas State University campus. That project is called Operation Facelift.

Mrs. Bill Kent, chairman of a chamber committee on beautification, said the efforts will also coincide with plans laid by the Canyon committee planning bicentennial efforts.

In light of the beautification project for WTSU and the bicentennial projects, Mrs. Kent said her committee has decided to take on several small-scale projects for beautification of the routes into Canyon and the city itself.

One major project the committee will tackle involves working with the Texas Highway Department to plant trees on the major highway approaches to the city.

Mrs. Kent said THD officials had given tentative okay to such a project and also vowed to provide watering for the trees.

Members of the committee are working with local experts in trees to determine the best type of tree to plant along the highways.

The trees would be planted outside the city limits particularly on the southern approach of U.S. 87 to Canyon.

Another tentative project for the chamber committee is sponsoring a contest for local youngsters for growing pecan trees in various parts of the city.

Mrs. Kent said Roland Black, chamber manager, has offered to provide pecans for the contest to encourage planting of trees.

The committee will coordinate with Operation Facelift workers for possible purchase and planting of mums around town. The flowers might be made available to homeowners for use in yards.

Members of the committee include Lorene Olsen, Jean Irwin, Mabel Taylor, Linda Elliott, Deta Black, Dorothy Byrd, Lynda Cooper, Bitsy Downing, Dianna Gheer, Inez Kiser and Ruth Prichard.

Sound and light production possible for amphitheatre here

Possibilities for staging a sound and light production on the history of the Texas Panhandle will be discussed Wednesday when nationally-known playwright Paul Green comes to the area for the annual meeting of the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation.

Green will be in the Canyon area this week pursuing research for the production, which he was asked to study by the directors of the foundation.

He will spend part of his time with Dr. Fred Rathjen, West Texas State University historian, in Palo Duro Canyon in research for the project.

Mrs. Margaret Harper said Green has accepted the job of writing a production which would play special occasions in the Pioneer Amphitheatre on the canyon floor when Green's musical-drama "TEXAS" is not playing.

The annual meeting of the foundation will feature a speech by Green at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday at the Big Texan Restaurant in Amarillo.

Mrs. Harper said Green was approached several years ago by directors concerning the project and he accepted the project last fall with the idea of doing his research this spring.

She said the new production, which will feature no live actors, would coincide well with current plans for the U.S. bicentennial celebration and Texas' part in that.

A previous production in the amphitheatre, "Thundering Sounds of the West," used sound and light techniques during parts of the show.

Mrs. Harper said Europeans developed the idea of the sound and light production at various points to tell the story of area history.

The technique has also been adapted to several historical locations in the U.S., including a production at Ford's Theatre in Washington, D.C., and one on the Hudson River.

But, she said, use of sound and light shows has not become as widespread as the use of productions such as "TEXAS," which plays through the summer in the canyon here.

Mrs. Harper said Green will probably focus on the total history of the Panhandle, running from the Spaniards and Indians through more modern historical times.

She said the production would not run on a continuous basis, but might be shown each Labor Day weekend. The production might also be on for special events at Palo Duro Canyon and for large conventions.

During Wednesday's meeting, election of officers will be conducted.

Million dollar lawsuit alleges plane at fault

A $1.5 million civil suit has been filed in 181st District Court here involving the death of a former Randall County resident who died in an airplane crash last summer north of Amarillo.

Defendants in the suit are Tradewinds Airport Corporation and Beech Aircraft Corporation.

Plaintiffs in the suit are Pamela Diane Curtin, Richard Trevor Curtin and Margret and Irving Curtin, all Randall County residents.

The suit involves the July 20, 1973, death of Richard Irving Curtin, 24, who was a passenger in an airplane which crashed about 23 miles northwest of Amarillo.

The suit alleges the aircraft was not airworthy and claims damages of $1.5 million.

Tradewinds Airport Corp. operates the Tradewinds Airport south of Amarillo in Randall County.

Beech Aircraft Corp. is located in Dover, Delaware.

Curtin was employed by Marsh Enterprises as a bulldozer operator and photographer at the time of his death in the plane crash.

The suit alleges that Beech Aircraft sold the airplane in which Curtin was a passenger to Tradewinds Corp. in early May 1973 and that Tradewinds used the airplane in its charter business.

The suit alleges that the death of Curtin "were the immediate and proximate result of the carelessness and negligence of the defendant, Beech Aircraft Corporation. . ."

The suit also alleges that the airplane was "designed, manufactured, assembled, sold and distributed. . . in a manner so as to render it defective and unsafe for its intended use."

The suit further alleges that Tradewinds Corp. was negligent in the maintenance of the aircraft.

Our World

Hike In Wages Equals Hike In Inflation

By ANN BROWN

The recent minimum wage increase is another attempt to outrun our own economic shadow by looking upon wages in terms of currency, rather than a value involved in an exchange.

Americans are consistently ignoring the fact that a printed dollar is no more than a piece of paper having no intrinsic value, an item which can neither be eaten, worn, nor by itself put to any substantial use.

A paper dollar is only what it was intended to be under our monetary system — a medium of exchange, an instrument for expediting the exchange of one man's labor for another's.

The only useful purpose any nation's currency serves is to make the barter system more convenient, whether it is gold or sea shells.

No doctor wants to be paid for his services in cattle, pigs, or chickens, or even in houses, lands, or limousines. He prefers a check — worthless paper in itself, but good as long as it will allow him to choose his own food and investments.

Some medium of exchange is essential in every civilized society. The wealth of any nation, however, is not gauged by the gold in its treasury, but by the goods and services available to its people. By that criterion, the U.S. is far ahead of any other nation. And that is no accident.

Civilization is always built on respect for fundamental values: work, family, and country; the individual, honor, and religion. Even a cursory examination of American history will reveal the important part each of these played in the development of our nation.

Everything in our economic life has a source, a destination, and a cost that must be paid. There never has been any such thing as a free lunch.

The government cannot give anything to the people until it first takes it away from them. And it always gives back less than it takes — much less.

Residents of the District of Columbia, who are primarily federal employees, have the highest incomes in the nation ($6,383). They get $1,905 per capita more than the average American draws ($4,478). That means those who live off the taxpayers get almost 50 per cent more money than the taxpayers themselves have left to live on.

Greed has created this situation. Not just the greed of federal employees, but the hope of millions of Americans that the government will take from their neighbors and give to them.

Russia, China, and Cuba are eloquent examples that you cannot gain wealth by taking it away from someone else. It melts like snow in your hands.

Wealth can only be created by producing the most goods and services for the most people so that everybody can share in the same proportion that he provides goods and services for his fellow men.

One of the complicating elements of our complex society is that we all enjoy sewer systems, but nobody wants to dig ditches.

Wages are the principal cost of everything. Therefore, widespread wage increases, without corresponding increases in production, simply increase the cost of living for everybody.

There is no question that millions of Americans are employed at less than a living wage. But where employers cannot raise employees' wages unless they increase their productivity, it means the employees will lose their jobs.

Actually, the wage increase will hurt the very people it was designed to help, the marginal employees. High wages are of no value if one does not have a job. And even the best paycheck is worthless if there is nothing to buy.

An old prospector tells of being lost in Death Valley. Just as he was about to give up hope and die of hunger, he found a bag of gold nuggets. "I shall never forget," he said, "the joy and delight I felt thinking the contents of the bag would be beans or jerky, nor the bitter disappointment and despair I suffered when I discovered the bag contained nothing but gold."

The Englishman who prefers to live on the dole, and buy white hyacinths to feed his soul, has overlooked two important facts: The worker who provides the dole needs soul food, too; but unless somebody works, the idle Englishman will soon be too hungry to enjoy his flowers.

Increasing wages without a corresponding increase in productivity can only increase unemployment and inflation. Who wants either?

Sex And Children

By CARROLL WILSON

I'm no prude.

Off-color jokes make me chuckle. Blue language doesn't bother me.

Streakers didn't offend me.

Dirty movies I can take or leave.

I have a choice, you see. If I want to hear a dirty joke, I can hear or not hear it. It is up to me to stop the teller.

If I don't want to hear dirty language, I can stop that also.

I didn't have to travel to the West Texas State campus to see the streakers. In fact, I didn't. It was my choice.

I don't have to pay to see dirty movies. Usually I don't. Again, it's my choice.

If a television movie might offend me, I have the power and the choice to turn the knob.

If I'm inclined to read a dirty book, again I have that choice. I have the power to plunk down my money. But, if I don't want to, I don't have to.

I'm no prude and yet I have what could only be described as a gut reaction to placement of Playboy, Playgirl, Penthouse and other magazines of that ilk with covers in prominent display on racks in Canyon drug and grocery stores.

It's no secret that girlie magazines have been in a full-scale rivalry in recent months to see which could show the most of the female anatomy.

That rivalry has not been manifested just within the inside pages of the magazines, but has spread onto the covers themselves.

Playboy magazine covers, for example, are baring more flesh than ever in the craving for readership.

I'm personally not offended by the covers. I could see why women would be. Such displays do no justice to the female as anything except the sexual object of the male.

I am offended that I have no choice as to whether I want to see the magazine covers as they glare from the newsstands locally.

And, I'm really offended that I have no choice in the matter when it comes to my 4-year-old daughter.

Call it parental protection, call it prudish, call it whatever you may, but I don't care to have my daughter go into the local supermarket to look for a Sesame Street Magazine or a Walt Disney Magazine and find virtually side-by-side with this juvenile fare the bare-breasted, bare bottomed sexpots of Playboy and Penthouse.

"Mommy," my daughter said after returning from the magazine rack last week in a local market, "those ladies on those magazines don't have any panties on."

My desire not to have my daughter exposed to Playboy and Penthouse cannot be defined. If you have a child, you know what I'm talking about.

It's a feeling akin to disgust.

My disgust or repugnance for the magazine covers' exposure to my daughter does not lead me to a call for censorship.

If Playboy and Penthouse want those kinds of covers, fine.

But, local businessmen — grocers and drug store owners — should exercise some discretion in the placement of their nudie magazines.

Committees Talk Ideas On '76 Fest

Canyon's Bicentennial Committee continued organizational efforts last week but several ideas for future consideration emerged to bring the city into the celebration.

Three primary committees have been formed to aid the overall committee in its planning work. The Horizons Committee is chaired by Claire Kuhen, Heritage Committee is chaired by Dr. Fred Rathjen and the Festival Committee is chaired by Mrs. Jane Stephens.

Mrs. Mary Alice Hines, publicity chairman for the committee, said plans were discussed at a Wednesday session for all three committees.

The Festival Committee, she said, is discussing several activities to spread over the next two years to culminate in 1976. One idea being discussed is a traveling art show and possible joint efforts with the West Texas State University Homecoming Committee for 1975.

Several ideas were also put forward tentatively by the Horizons Committee. One idea is development of a park at the new Canyon hospital facility.

The Heritage Committee will be busy developing oral history projects from the area under Rathjen's direction. Another idea under development is a drive for personal artifacts from early days for the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum.

All Around The House

By BECKY HALL
County Extension Agent

The disease is the nation's number 2 killer, second only to heart disease. No one is sure what causes it. The dreaded killer strikes in many different forms, settling somewhere in the body virtually unnoticed.

It is no respecter of age or sex. In a period of weeks, months, or years it grows, destroying body cells by the thousands until at last, life itself gives way to death.

The disease is cancer. The story you have just read is true, some of the time. Only a short decade ago there hardly was an exception. Cancer raged uncontrolled, could not even be slowed.

Now, cancer in its many different forms is being studied like no other disease in the history of mankind. Research increasingly is coming up with answers, and people stricken with cancer are being treated successfully, and living longer than expectations of only a few years ago.

These and other conclusions, will be presented by medical doctors and others at a special one-day seminar May 1 at the Hilton Inn in Amarillo.

The event is being sponsored by the Family Living Youth Task Force of the Panhandle Economic Program, in cooperation with the Potter County Unit of the American Cancer Society. PEP is a voluntary organization sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and is composed of citizens interested in the economic and social growth of the Panhandle.

Widespread interest in the seminar already has boosted expected attendance to over 700.

Such questions to be considered include, "What is cancer?", "What hope does research offer in the immediate future?" and "How can cancer be treated now?"

Noted experts in the field of cancer research and treatment will be featured speakers, among them, H. J. Sannan, M.D., vice president for medical affairs, western area of the American Cancer Society. Sannan is based at Denver, Colo.

A. B. Goldston, M.D., Amarillo surgeon and director-at-large for ACS, will moderate a panel on "Cancer Diagnosis and Treatment."

The panel includes an oral surgeon, a radiologist, a hemotologist oncologist, and a general surgeon.

Another series of speakers addressing the topic, "Prevention Through Education," include a urologist, a member of the Ostomy Club in Amarillo, a speech teacher who also is a farmer, and an ACS official.

William A. Anthony, M.D., district medical director of ACS District 15, will speak on the cancer problem and the ACS. Anthony is a urologist.

Jim Shelton, president of the Potter County Unit of ACS, will discuss the role of county volunteer units in the fight against cancer. Both a slide presentation and a film also will be part of the program.

Medical professionals appearing on the program, in addition to Drs. Anthony, Goldston, and Sannan, include Dr. Paige Carruth, area educational chairman of ACS-Texas division; Taylor Gillespie of the Ostomy Club; Herrick Simon, speech teacher for ACS, district 15; Mrs. Lee Jenkins, district coordinator of the "Reach to Recovery" program of ACS; Don T. Curtis, D.D.S., oral surgeon from Amarillo; Donald Kuxhausen, M.D., radiologist at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo; and Bill Hayes, M.D., general surgeon from Amarillo.

Presiding over the one-day session will be Edd McLeroy, chairman of the Family Living Youth Task Force of PEP.

Randall County will be represented at the meeting. Volunteers of the local ACS unit, according to Allene Stovall, chairman, along with several delegates and Extension agents plan to attend.

Anyone interested in learning about cancer is invited.

Advance registrations and a $3 fee are required only of persons attending the lunch at the Hilton Inn. Deadline is April 23, and forms are available to the County Extension Office, first floor of the courthouse.

The public is invited to attend. The meeting starts at 9:30 a.m. and will adjourn at 4:00 p.m.

Beer. . .

rillo garnered them first place honors in the Cub Scout category.

Their exhibit, constructed by Maj. L.D. Truitt, was a large contraption with attached combat boot for smashing cans. It was called the Big Stomper and encouraged passersby to smash the aluminum cans.

After smashing all 13,500 beer cans, the pack members found in Amarillo that "Coors would prefer to have the cans unsmashed," Grillo said.

Grillo said the scouts owe thanks to members of the ATO fraternity at West Texas State University for providing storage facilities for the beer cans.

Elm. . .

Brazzil said some small towns on the North Plains have found it feasible to initiate a community spraying program which has proven fairly effective in stalling the beetles.

But, he noted, it would be difficult for a larger town or city to try community control measures.

Brazzil has said that annual defoliation by the beetles will eventually kill the city's elms.

Already, city officials have laid plans to plant other types of trees in Conner Park.

Fleet Linemen Sign With WT

A pair of fleet, talented linemen from Hacienda Heights, Calif., have signed national letters of intent to play football at West Texas State University.

The linemen, twin brothers John and Bob Hewko, were two-year standouts for the Los Altos High School teams which won back to back Southern Division championships in the California Interscholastic Federation.

Los Altos, under coach Dewayne DeSpain, won the Class AAA division of the CIF with an 11-0-2 record while the Hewko brothers were juniors. The school moved into Class AAAA this past season and the team captured that CIF championship.

"John and Bob are the finest pair of tackles we have had in school," said DeSpain. "Their agility and quickness are their strongest points, but both are tough, hard-nosed kids. They don't jump up and down a lot, they just quietly get their jobs done."

The brothers are both 6-3½ and 205 pounds. They run the 40-yard dash in 4.7.

Bob earned first team all-league honors as an offensive tackle during his junior season and John was an honorable mention all-league offensive tackle that same year. The brothers captured an arm load of honors as seniors.

John was named to the first offensive team in the All-Sierra League selections as a senior. He was named by the Los Angeles Times to the All-San Gabriel Valley team and was selected by that paper as the outstanding offensive lineman in the San Gabriel Valley. He was also a first team All-CIF selection in the Southern Division and earned the Sertoma Lineman of the Year Award.

While Bob earned all-league and All-San Gabriel Valley honors on offense as a junior, he was honored for his defensive play at tackle during his senior year.

Following his senior season Bob was named all-league, All-San Gabriel Valley, and on the All-CIF Southern Division first defensive team. The Los Angeles Times named him to the first All-San Gabriel Valley team and picked him as a member of the All-star team for all classes in the CIF.

"John and Bob weigh 205 now and could well weigh 225 by fall and still maintain their speed and agility," said Buffalo assistant coach Jim Campbell, who signed the brothers. "They are equally skilled on both offense and defense. They were excellent high school players and have the potential to do equally well in college."

Umbarger Man Killed In One Car Accident

Dwayne Raymond Gerber, Box 51, Umbarger, was killed in a one car accident 6.7 miles southwest of Bushland. He was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by Randall County coroner. He was 24 years of age.

Gerber was driving a 1971 Buick LaSaber south on Sampson Road. The car ran off the road into a bar ditch on the east side of the road then pulled back on the road and skidded broadside. It then went back into the east bar ditch and rolled five or six times, according to Trooper Paul Hoff who investigated the accident. The vehicle landed on its wheels on the east side of the roadway, stated Hoff.

Gerber's head struck a culvert breaking his neck when he was thrown from the car.

Gerber was born in Canyon February 15, 1950. He was a veteran of the Viet Nam war.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gerber of Umbarger; one brother, Gary, of the home; three sisters, Mrs. Tom Sanford of 303 4th Ave., Canyon, Maryln Joyce Gerber of Amarillo and Vickie Gerber of the home.

Surviving grandparents are Otto Skarke of Umbarger and Mrs. Marie Barnerd of Amarillo.

Funeral services are pending at LaGrone Funeral Chapel.

Arts And Entertainment Thru The Looking Glass

By ANN MELIN

It's a funny thing.

In the past week I've encountered in person or through letters four great artists.

Georgia O'Keeffe is an artist of world renown and amidst a pile of birth announcements, WTSU news releases and miscellaneous debris, I discovered a letter from the lady on my desk last Friday.

The woman to whom New Yorker magazine devoted a goodly portion of their March 4 issue told me in her letter that she gave the story of her life to the prestigious New York publication instead of The Canyon News because "the New Yorker reaches a great many more people than The Canyon News."

She told me, however, that she would be interested in what Canyon folk who knew her as a young artist would say about her today. She told me I could tell these people that "I don't mind their speaking to you."

Visiting with one of her friends in the city, the woman told me she really had no inkling that the quiet, reserved young WT art instructor would one day become one of the world's greatest artists. But there was no doubt in this woman's mind that Georgia O'Keeffe was an artist.

O'Keeffe once told this woman if she wanted a reproduction of Nature's beauty to hold in her hands, she could as easily take a photograph as paint the scene. When one paints, O'Keeffe told her, one puts down what one feels.

The woman went on to say that as far as she was concerned the art work of Dr. Emilio Caballero was perhaps the best she's ever seen. She admired O'Keeffe's work greatly, although she confessed she wasn't sure she "understood it." Caballero's work was a different matter, however. It seemed hard for her to put it exactly into words. "Beautiful," was the best she could do.

Dr. Emilio Caballero is the second great artist I've encountered this week.

Dr. Caballero's reputation as an artist in this region, as well as in the state, is quite honorable, although it can't be said that the WTSU art department head has gained the international reputation that O'Keeffe currently enjoys (the latter word may be rather inappropriate since the woman tends to shun the limelight, sadly acknowledging in her letter to me that "I have to have some publicity whether I like it or not.")

Talking with a talented young photographer at WTSU, we mused over why O'Keeffe was "world famous" while Dr. Caballero was well-known only regionally. Were they not both great artists?

O'Keeffe was "discovered" by her photographer-husband Alfred Sieglitz, a New Yorker who is said to have exclaimed "At last, a woman on canvas!" when he first saw the work of the WTSU art instructor who was to become his wife and most famous model. Many years her senior and already a photographer of national repute, Sieglitz may have "established" O'Keeffe in a position in which she would gain world recognition. The realistic-minded might call their meeting "a lucky break." The idealist would call it "fate."

O'Keeffe was one of those individuals who were "born to be artists." I'm convinced there are hundreds of these individuals walking around. I'm astounded at the number of them I find in Canyon. I think perhaps the only difference between them and O'Keeffe is that the latter was fiercely individualistic, perhaps as unfettered by the restraints of society as a person can be. She knew who she was and what she was. Nobody could have told her different. She was an artist.

Dr. Caballero is also an artist, but I can recall an occasion when the two of us haggled over whether I was going to acknowledge him in a story as an "artist" or as a "teacher." Unquestionably, Dr. Caballero is both. But he told me frankly that he preferred to be known as a "teacher."

I believe that Dr. Caballero's decision to be a teacher-artist instead of an artist-teacher has made all the difference in his life.

But more important, it has made a dramatic difference in the history of West Texas State University. By luck or fate, WTSU has a great teacher who is also a great artist.

Not only can WTSU claim one great teacher-artist (or artist-teacher).

Dave Rindlisbacher, art instructor at WTSU since last fall, is the third great artist I've encountered this week.

Rindlisbacher is a young artist with a visionary mission in life of using his considerable artistic talent to convey his deep religious beliefs. Quite frankly I've seen only one piece of Rindlisbacher's work. Whether or not I liked that painting, however, isn't important. I knew Dave was an artist before I even saw his work.

Like Caballero, Rindlisbacher is a fine teacher. A fine teacher by my definition is not just one who imparts knowledge, but one capable of instilling in his students the same boundless love he possesses for his discipline. I'm told Georgia O'Keeffe had such a "knack" for firing up her students at WTSU.

At 26, Rindlisbacher is at the same crossroad in life that O'Keeffe and Caballero once stood before. O'Keeffe took one road, Caballero another. I wonder which one Rindlisbacher will ultimately choose. . .

Another artist was in Canyon last week and he paused to reflect upon his decision many years ago to capture the cool, mist-enshrouded New England landscape on canvas.

John Clifford Pellew is the fourth great artist I've encountered in the past week.

Pellew told me he believed an artist should paint what he knew best, just as a writer should write that with which he is intimately familiar.

The world-famous watercolorist told Caballero and me that he was fascinated by the Texas Panhandle. Both its land and its people were sources of wonder for the English-born artist. The land was remarkable for its wide-openness and its brilliant blue sky that almost hurts the unfamiliar eye to look upon. And the people — "they have this warmth, this friendliness you don't find in other places," Pellew said.

When he left Canyon, the 71-year-old Pellew told Dr. Caballero that if he were 20 years old again, there'd be no question about where he would choose to be an artist. "I'd come here," he said.

The Texas Panhandle is in ferment. Those that come here from the "outside" have noticed it. What happened in the Southern United States forty years ago — a sudden, extraordinary outcropping of artists like William Faulkner and Robert Penn Warren — has moved westward to this region.

Artists are always sensitive to their surroundings. Hence, Pellew can come to Canyon and in one week sense that something is abroad here that residents aren't even aware of themselves.

Old Earl Burtz, the conductor of Palo Duro Canyon's Sad Monkey railroad put his finger on it when he said "I've known some folks who've had something right before them all their lives, but they never knew it was there."

Father time seems to have closed the final door to the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum obtaining the remaining 58 carriages of the Thomas Babb collection according to personnel. The museum was given 33 of the carriages prior to Babb's death on July 4, 1973. Presently 32 of the carriages are on display at the museum.

Friday, April 5, was the last day for the museum to raise two hundred thousand dollars to purchase the remaining carriages which are in the hands of the Babb heirs. The remaining carriages will probably be sold at an auction in order to settle the Babb estate, according to C. Boone McClure of the museum.

The museum has contacted the Moody Foundation in Galveston, the Sid Richardson Foundation of Fort Worth and a member of the advisory board of the National Council for Historical Preservation in Washington D.C. The Richardson foundation had already appropriated money available to them this year and it would be late spring before more money would be available.

The museum first learned of the Bab collection several years ago, according to McClure, when a visitor from Austin stepped into the museum office and asked if they would like to acquire a carriage collection. The man promised to write and give the name and address of one who had such a collection.

The man never wrote back so McClure went to the museum register and found the man's name and address and wrote for the information. Babb's name and address was sent to the museum. Babb did not reply to the letter McClure sent him.

Senator William Patman of the state legislature learned of the museum's quest and offered to set up an appointment with Babb for them. According to McClure, the then governor, John Connally, offered to assist the museum in securing the collection.

Babb said he would let the museum have the carriages if they had a place to display them. The then Lieutenant Governor Ben Barnes told Babb that the museum would have room to display the collection if they had to build another building for them.

Babb offered the museum part of the collection. In the agreement, the museum had to move the carriages in closed vans. Six carriages were brought to Canyon in the first load. A month later the museum called Babb to learn when they could come for the second load. According to McClure, Babb said they could have the second load only when the first six carriages were on display.

School Trustees To Meet On Wed.

A South Amarillo developer, Glenn Odell, will appear again Wednesday before Randall County school trustees to present a petition for annexation of several acres of land to the Amarillo School District.

Odell withdrew a previous petition he had presented last year after discussion among trustees and Dist. Atty. George Dowlen.

He has presented his petition to members of the Amarillo and Canyon School Boards, neither of which has taken action on the document.

The petition will seek annexation by the Amarillo district of about 150 acres of land in South Amarillo. The land currently lies in the Canyon School District.

Canyon School Board members have consistently taken the stand that they will not approve annexation of property unless the local district profits by the move.

Only a handful of houses are located on the acreage Odell wishes to have annexed.

Re-elected Trustees J. D. Barker, R. B. Gist Jr., and Joe Turpin will be sworn in during the meeting Wednesday following Saturday's election.

In other business, Jerry Jacobs, superintendent of Canyon schools, will discuss "county and district school business" with the trustees, according to the agenda.

The trustees meet at 10 a.m. in the office of County Judge Woody Pond.

Popcorn Machine On Display

By JIM ROGERS

Among the 33 carriages given to the Panhandle-Plains Museum by the late Thomas Babb is a 1915 "Improved Special Model C" popcorn machine. This machine has been restored to its original condition and is now on display at the museum.

The popcorn machine was the last thing given to the museum by Babb prior to his death July 4, 1973. The machine was his wife's favorite and was parked in front of the kitchen window for her to see each day. It took museum workers 10 months to restore the machine to its like-new appearance.

The machine, originally gasoline drive, had been converted to an electrically powered motor. Hugh Greiner reworked the motor and made some parts that had been broken to convert it back to gasoline.

It took the museum two days to find a firm that would make a decorative pane of glass for the side of the machine. While this glass was being installed, it cracked. It cost $145 to make.

When a museum employee went to pick up the glass at the Dallas firm, he encountered a woman who had found a popcorn machine similar to the one owned by the museum. It was for sale with a $60,000 price tag.

The machine was originally purchased by R.E. Sharp of Clinton, Iowa on May 19, 1915 for $1,045. The machine weighs 1850 pounds. The frame of the machine is 44 inches wide, and 8 feet 8 inches long. Total length overall is 11 feet 9 inches. It stands 8 feet 9 inches high. The popper case is 44 by 31 inches.

According to original sales sheet the drivers seat was a $75 option. The original engine had a nickel plated finish. The low pressure boiler burners were under air pressure. It contained a pump, safety-valve, oil separator and illumination painting.

The machine has a power transmission. "By means of gears, shaft and bicycle chain, with various disconnecting clutches to throw popper or roaster out of gear when not in use," states the sales sheet.

The running gears were hand-forged and supported by elastic springs. The wheels were 30-36 inches high and fitted with "one and one-half inch best grade rubber carriage tires."

Peanuts were dumped directly into a large peanut pan situated immediately underneath the roasting cylinder. A removable metal stock bin is located between the bottom of the peanut pan and floor. Capacity of the bin is for 100 pounds of raw peanuts.

Customers could be served from both sides of the carriage. A panel swings out to form a 10 inch by 43 inch counter for walk-up customers. An awning afforded small protection from the heat of the sun. On the opposite side a large shelf swings out to handle carriage trade.

There are two corn poppers driven by a bicycle chain. On the roasting cylinder, a testor is provided for trying peanuts during roasting.

A copper peanut warming box was heated by both live and exhaust steam with temperature regulating valves. This is found behind the "Fresh Roasted Peanuts" sign.

Draught from the boiler and roasting cylinder is piped up the rear of the machine so that it is hardly noticeable. It discharges through the roof out into the open air. This was to "do away with objectionable odors and to reduce heat inside the machine."

Tax Changes To Be Talked

A discussion of adjusting taxes — including possible discussion of a reappraisal of all property — will be main item on the agenda for county commissioners when they meet at 1 p.m. Monday.

Commissioners will meet initially at 10 a.m. Monday to pay vouchers and then will resume their meeting at 1 p.m. to take up regular business.

Brief discussion of the tax adjustment situation was pursued last week by commissioners, but no definite information was talked.

County Judge Woody Pond has not discounted the possibility that commissioners will call for a full reappraisal of all county property to bring taxes into line with fair market value standards.

Commissioners talked briefly last week about the possibility of forming a special tax adjustment committee to examine tax valuations in the county.

Other than the tax issue, commissioners face a relatively light agenda.

They will meet with Horace Dwight, developer of McCormick Estates in the north part of the county, concerning a plat he wants approved.

Commissioners have spent several sessions in discussion with Dwight concerning road construction in his development and the new Randall County road policies.

Mrs. Audrey Bruse, tax assessor-collector, will also meet with commissioners to discuss hiring of personnel and the purchase of equipment.

Dist. Atty. George Dowlen will meet with commissioners to discuss employment of a new assistant in his office and the re-hiring of former Asst. Jim Blair as attorney to collect delinquent taxes.

The results of the County School Trustee election held Saturday will be canvassed by commissioners.

The meeting will be in commissioners courtroom on the second floor of the north annex to the courthouse in Canyon.

Eagles Open District Play At Dumas

April 16 will be the date of the opening of district play for the Canyon High School Eagle baseball team. The Eagles will travel to Dumas for a double header to open district.

Canyon will begin their district play with a 5-7 win-loss record. One of the seven losses went to Dumas during the Hereford tournament. Dumas leads the district in the won-loss column with a 10-4 record. Levelland, the only other team in the district has a 4-4 record.

Ed Lair leads the Eagle pitching staff in the won-loss column. According to coach Bob Sloan, Lair is a contender for district honors. Ronny Hicks will be Sloan's second man to see mound duty. Relief pitchers will be Steve Lehman and Wayne Pitt.

The Eagles enter district play with six batters hitting over .300. Lair leads in the average department with a .380. He is followed by Pitt, who bats lead-off and plays third base, with a .370; Jimmy Ward, .360; Doug Day, .320; Lynn Right, .310; and Brad Martin, .302.

According to Sloan, Day is looking better all the time at his short stop position. Martin, playing center field, adds speed to the team's outfield. Sloan commended Terry Slagle's defense behind the plate.

Sloan feels that his Eagles are "getting it together" and should be in strong contention for the district title.

In pre-season, Canyon has played Palo Duro, Caprock, Pampa, Hereford, Clovis and Dumas. They defeated Palo Duro twice, Hereford twice and Clovis once.

Dumas, who beat the Eagles in the second game of the Hereford tournament and went on to win first place, should offer the most competition to the Eagles as they seek the district crown.

Dumas has five hitters over the .300 mark and two over .400. Matt Vollert leads Dumas hitting with a .418 average. He is followed by Danny Bilbrey, .400; Terry Good, .391; Randy Galoway, .333; and Lance Hagler, .333. Dumas has two returning starters from last year's team.

Pitchers leading the Dumas defense this year are Larry Austin with a 3-1 won-loss record, Vick Von with a 2-2 record and Ed Troutman with a record of 3-1.

Levelland has eight returning starters this year according to head coach Charles Segler. This year's team is marked by a solid defense according to Segler.

Pitching for Levelland this year are Darvel Kirby with a 3-0 record and David Dunson with a 1-1 record. According to Segler, a lot of home runs have been hit off his pitchers.

Leading hitters for the team are Willie Franklin, Dale Clark, Brady Brashear and Jim Richardson.

Four double-headers are scheduled for Canyon's district play. April 16 they play Dumas at Dumas. On April 20, Canyon will host Levelland here. Ten days later, April 30, the Eagles will play host to Dumas here. The final game of the season for the Eagles will be at Levelland on May 4.

Seventh Graders Plant Pecan Tree

One hundred and fifty students of Texas History at Canyon Junior High School under the direction of Mrs. Nadine Lyles, seventh grade Texas History teacher, took part in planting a pecan tree in front of their school this past week. The pecan tree is the state tree.

Students contributed a dime each and were able to purchase a tree at half price, according to Stan Sanders, member of the second period class. They took part in digging the 24-inch wide and 4-feet deep hole where they planted the tree. This was both fun and of educational value for the children according to Mrs. Lyles.

Students were taught the part the pecan tree played in Texas history when former Texas Governor James Hogg requested a pecan tree planted at the head of his grave. Hogg was the first native born Texas governor.

The students learned that the pecan tree is a type of hickory tree, according to a paper by Mike Moore, one of the students. The tree grows mostly in the Mississippi Valley region and also in the river valleys of Oklahoma, Texas and Northern Mexico.

Students learned the history of Arbor Day also. According to a paper by Cindy Todd, Arbor Day is a day set apart for planting trees and is observed primarily by school children, though some civic groups participate.

Poems were written by the students concerning trees in general, pecan trees and Arbor Day. Students chose the poems they liked best. Poems selected as best from all sections of Texas History classes were written by Hilda Hartman, Jamie Bone, Johnny Crowley, Lisa Erwin, John Guidry, Mark Podzemny, Kelly West, Susie Wright, Bernie Wieck, Sandy Warwick, Don Whipple and Kim Rose.

The top three poems chosen were Pecan Trees by John Guidry, Pecan Tree by Susie Wright and Arbor Day by Lisa Erwin.

Two samples of their poems are:

TREES

By Kim Rose

Trees, Trees for you and me
Trees as high as you can see
Trees from sea to sea,
Trees with beauty,
Trees for you and me.

TREES

By Don Whipple

Trees are trees
They are fun for you and me
Because they are so full of glee.
It could be a home for a bee,
Or it could be the home for a flea.
Birds fly to the top of a tree
So they can see thee.
Oh no! That bird fell out of the tree
He broke his little knee.
Wait! I think he was a she
Now they are drinking iced tea
That is the end of the tree.

Heart Association Elects Delegates

The Randall County Heart Association held their monthly meeting Wednesday morning in the Gold Room at the WTSU dining hall. Delegates to the state and regional meeting were elected.

Those elected to attend the state Heart Association meeting to be held in Dallas in June are: Dr. A. J. Luquette, Weldon Trice and Dr. Edwin Low.

Elected to attend the regional meeting in May in Amarillo are: Dr. Luquette, Trice, Reggie Reeves, and Mrs. Lee Reeves. Two more delegates will be selected prior to the May meeting.

In other business, the association discussed plans for a blood pressure clinic to be held during the Canyon Days Celebration this summer. They also discussed the business drive to be held in May. Details on the May drive will be announced later.

Dr. Luquette announced plans to show a heart film to all local service clubs during the coming month.

It was also announced that a representative from the state heart association will be present at the next monthly meeting. This will be an orientation meeting.

Judge Talks On Justice

As members of an affluent society, Americans must strive to offer a uniform opportunity for human development, Judge Mary Lou Robinson of Amarillo told members of the Juanelva Rose Circle of the First United Methodist Church of Canyon recently.

Judge Robinson, first woman in Texas to be named a justice on the appellate court bench, spoke on justice, liberation and human development.

She defined justice as equality for all persons, liberation as developing one's own potential and human development as opportunity to develop one's own potential.

She cited her most recent project in the realm of human development, work on opening of Opportunity House, Inc., in Amarillo, a non-profit short-term interim house for troubled teenage girls.

The justice said in the areas of justice, liberation and human development the members of society can gain knowledge of community affairs, demand to get things done, become involved, give time and money and commit themselves to the community.

In terms of the business world, Judge Robinson said every woman should make decisions with one question in mind: "What would I do if I owned the company?" She said women should fight for justice because injustice prevails when good people do nothing.

And, she advised the women not to abandon or compromise their principles to succeed either in business or socially.

Thirty members of the circle were present for the speech.

Building Permits Total $850,000

Building permits issued in Canyon during the first quarter of 1974 totalled $859,000.

Permits for March totalled 725,000, for February the total was $106,000 and for January the total was $26,900.

Through the first three months of 1973, permits totalled $389,500.

Yoders Have New Baby

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Yoder of 2405 8th Ave. in Canyon announce the birth of Ashley Paige Yoder on March 30 at Neblett Memorial Hospital here.

Ashley weighed 7 lbs. 10 oz. at birth and measured 20½ inches in length.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. James Lee of Paducah, and paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Yoder of Littleton, Colo.

The father is employed as a carpenter.

Taylor Weds Martinez-Garza

Shelly Elizabeth Taylor and Oscar Eduardo Martinez-Garza were married at noon Saturday during double-ring ceremonies at St. Ann's Catholic Church of Canyon with Father Jack Gist, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Taylor of 417 Taylor Lane in Canyon. Martinez-Garza is son of Oscar Martinez-Chavarria of Monterrey, Mexico.

The West Texas State University string quartet, consisting of James Wolden on the cello, Greg Shaffer and James Caddell on the violin and Don Norrington on the viola, provided music for the wedding. They played selections from Corelli, Boccherini, Borodin and Tchaikovsky.

Variant shades of pink gladiolas decorated the church in cascades falling from the ceiling on either side of the altar. The bride and her attendants carried bouquets of pink gladiolas.

Attentants were Maria Eugenia Garza Barba, cousin of the groom, Cindy Taylor Mills, sister of the bride, and Janet Taylor Kasishke, sister of the bride.

Bridesmaids wore floor-length matte jersey mauve gowns enhanced by hooded cowl necklines. Their sleeves tapered to the wrist. Bias bands of jersey crossed the bodice front forming a fitted waistline. Their skirts fell unadorned to the hem.

Best man was Hernan Martinez-Garza and groomsmen were Cesar Martinez-Garza and Efrian Gonzales.

The bride was given in marriage by her mother and father.

She wore a formal gown of candlelight satin and re-embroidered alexia lace designed with a fitted empire bodice of lace overlay on a sheer organza yoke. Her neckline was victorian and her sleeves were of sheer organza appliqued in lace layered to points over her hands. Seed pearls and crystals were re-embroidered over the bodice and sleeves and on the appliques of each skirt side front seam.

She wore a matching lace cathedral veil which was held in place by a camel leaf of alexian lace seeded in pearls and marked by a satin bow.

A reception followed the wedding at the Amarillo Club. Another reception was held in late afternoon in the Taylor home.

The couple will spend a month in Spain on their wedding trip. The bride travelled in a short beige linen dress accessorized in brown leather shoes and bag.

Following May 5, the couple will be at home in Monterrey, Mexico.

The bride was a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority and is a graduate of the University of Texas. She attended Southern Methodist University and Monterrey Technological.

The groom is a graduate in architecture from the University of Texas. He attended Monterrey Tech and the University of Nuevo Leon. He is currently employed by the Mexican government as head of the research department of history and anthropology in the reconstruction and preservation of governmental monuments.

First Baptist Changes Plans

In an overwhelming majority vote, the First Baptist Church of Canyon has discontinued plans for a new educational building and will proceed immediately with plans for renovation of the existing church building, according to the Rev. Darrell Baldwin, Minister of Education at First Baptist.

Virgil Henson, chairman of the building committee, stated that the committee will begin final plans for the renovation project and will have them ready to present to the church in the near future. Barring any unforeseeable circumstances, he anticipates that work could begin by August 1.

The Rev. Bill Foil, pastor of the church for the past four years, expressed a sincere confidence in the project being used as a unifying force for the congregation as they move forward in the days ahead.

At the present time the men of the church are in weekly training sessions to put forth a church-wide fund raising campaign. According to Rev. Baldwin, each family within the church will be challenged to support the operating budget of the church and to support as well the building fund as the Holy Spirit directs them.
